

FINAL DAY OF SKI MEET GOES TO RED AND WHITE

McGill Team Captured Nearly all Points in Second Day, But Fail to Overcome Lead of Dartmouth by 4 1-2 Points—Return Series Here to Decide Championship.

In spite of the 231-2 to 8 lead obtained by Dartmouth in the first day's events, an almost sweeping victory on Saturday for McGill balanced the final score for the first round of the Eastern Intercollegiate Ski Association Meet to 281-2 for Dartmouth and 24 for McGill. New Hampshire State College ran third with 9 points, Middlebury netted 1 point and Mass. Tech. 1-2 point. The ultimate title will be decided next weekend, when the second round of the meet will be run off at McGill, the points obtained at the two respective meets being tallied to determine the Association Winner.

After Friday's triumph for the Dartmouth Green, the McGill team practically turned the tables and began to reap honours for the Red and White. Event number one on Saturday's programme was the Ski Proficiency Contest. Despite a large field of contestants, and with snow conditions far from ideal, Sherrard, Sci. '23 went through the various turns with remarkable consistency and peerless style, winning the event with 111 points. Gravel, Sci. '24, was adjudged second honours, with 107 points, while Leslie, Sci. '24 and Whittall, Sci. '25 tied for third place with 106 points. The absolute win brought the McGill total up to 17 points.

Thereafter came the Intercollegiate Ski Relay. Unlike that of other years, when the race has been a short one, with four runners going back and forth over a straight course, Dartmouth initiated a circular track, involving a quarter-mile dash for each of the four runners, and alternate runners going almost entirely up-hill. New Hamp. State, M.I.T., and Vermont did not enter this event, hence it devolved into a tripartite contest between Dartmouth, Middlebury and McGill. Chance gave Dartmouth the inner track, with a fairly well-beaten lane, and McGill and Middlebury the less preferable and heavier outer courses. As first man for McGill, Starke, Comm. '24 gave Edson of Dartmouth a heartbreaking race. It was all up-hill going for the full quarter-mile and was rather an endurance contest than a ski relay. Mostly by reason of his good fortune in having the inner track, Edson finished out a few feet ahead of Starke. Wade, Med. '25, chased Forbush of Dartmouth down-hill for the second quarter, with Middlebury far in the rear, Mack-lair, Law '23 and Mann fought it out on the uphill grind for the third quarter, the Green still ahead by a six-foot lead. Whittall and Bowler finished it down-hill, the latter with his inimitable style crossing the tape as winner for the Green.

Four thousand carnival girls and Dartmouth students attended the third event—the Ski Jumping from the 110-foot steel jump. In practice jumps before the meet several McGill men had exceeded the old record of 109 feet on the jump. A complete smashing of the record was contemplated and biting north-west wind sprung up for the occasion. This miniature gale was directly against the take-off, the result being that every jump was discounted from ten to twenty-five feet. Gravel started the day with what proved to be the longest jump of the afternoon, 112 feet, but the difficult weather conditions brought about a fall. Michel-son of New Hampshire State College carried the event with 18.18 points. Wait, Comm. '25 won second place for McGill with 17.57 points, while Whittall placed third with 17.51. Frost of Dartmouth followed in fourth place, with Gravel in fifth. In addition to making the longest jump, Gravel had the honour of making the longest standing jump of 101 feet.

In the Ski Obstacle Race Edson of Dartmouth won from Starke of McGill. As Edson was one of Starke's rivals in the final of the Ski Dash on Friday, they fought it out once again in the obstacle to a hard dual battle. Anderson, Law '24 won the Snowshoe Obstacle race from Grow, of Middlebury and Doe of Dartmouth.

HOCKEY TEAM PREPARES FOR FINAL GAME

Team Ends Season Saturday IN TORONTO

Intermediate Players Will be Promoted to Senior Squad

The McGill hockey team after resting up since the University of Montreal contest on Wednesday night, will resume practice in preparation for Varsity game in Toronto on Saturday.

Although the team is now definitely out of the running for the championship the players are keen on ending the year with a triumph over their ancient rivals. Even without the championship no season can be considered unsuccessful when the Varsity team has been twice beaten by the Red and White.

The McGill team always rises to its height in any encounter against the Blue and White and the Torontonians may find their visitors a stumbling block on their path to the championship. A win for the U. of T. gives them the Intercollegiate title for the fourth successive year while a McGill victory will place Varsity in a tie with the Presbyterians if the latter can repeat their victory over the University of Montreal.

The Senior and Intermediate squads will engage in a brisk workout at the Arena this evening at 6.30, and Coach Shaughnessy will keep his eyes on the second string men in order to select one or two for promotion to the first team.

Wise, who has displayed good form all season with the Intermediates, is almost sure of making the trip to Toronto, and if any of the others show sufficient improvement they will accompany the squad to the Queen City for the final game of the season. "Slag" is anxious to break some of the new men into senior competition in order to form a strong nucleus for next year's team.

The squad leaves Montreal on Friday night and the contest with the Varsity sextette takes place the following afternoon.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS AGAIN ON THE FORE

Although following so closely upon the banquet held at the Mount Royal Hotel a few evenings ago, the previously arranged skating party of the Newfoundland Club will take place at the Coliseum to-morrow evening at 8 p.m. No details of the extensive programme has been omitted, and a most enjoyable evening is assured to all.

Reservations have been made at the Yellow Teapot Inn, Peel Street, where an excellent musical programme and abundance of "Eats" will be provided. By special arrangement, unlimited and exclusive dancing accommodation has also been reserved, and this in itself will make the evening worth while.

LAST MOCK PARLIAMENT TO BE HELD

R. K. Jones to Lead the Coalition

STRONG OPPOSITION

Governor-General Sir Arthur Currie Will Prorogue Parliament for One Year

A strong Unionist Government, embracing outstanding members of both former Constitutional and Progressive administrations, will hold the reins of state when Parliament meets on Thursday night in the ball room of the Union for the third and last session of the college year. A caucus of the leading members of the two parties held on Saturday definitely refused to accept the resignation of the Right Hon. R. K. Jones, who was named by the retiring premier, Right Hon. V. Barre, to succeed him. Jones, it is said, pleaded a growing weight of years and a natural desire to lead a less active existence in his 'The Hon. M. Gaboriau, Chief Con- old age. He has, however, consented to head the Unionist ministry. A constitutional Whip, when interviewed by the Daily last night on the matter, said: "The Constitutionalists and Progressives are in complete union. The former are fully determined to loyally and enthusiastically support the Premier, who is our choice, against our common enemy, the high tones, whose reactionary tendencies are potentially a dangerous menace to the liberty of the students."

Concerning his retiring chief, Gaboriau said: "Barre is setting out for Hellowland on a honeymoon. I'm not divulging whose."

Hon. E. C. Amaron, former Progressive Minister of Finance, stated last night: "The Progressives to a man are ready to work with the Constitutionalists. The two parties have everything in common. We, as well as the country, have a common enemy in Conservatism."

Prime Minister R. K. Jones, declared to a Daily reporter that plans were being actively pushed forward to rush through much important legislation in the last session. "The issue is clear-cut," he said. "The Conservatives, as I see their attitude, want to eliminate humor from the proceedings of Parliament. We think that it is essential to retain an element of humor. The Government is unifiedly determined on this point." The platform of the Unionist Party will be announced in to-morrow's Daily, together with the personnel of the Cabinet and the programme for the session.

General Sir Arthur Currie will prorogue Parliament in his official capacity as Governor General.

TUX. IS BANNED AT NEXT INFORMAL

Tickets Will Go On Sale at One O'clock To-day

A really informal "Informal" will be held in the Union on Friday night next. The tickets will be put on sale at the hall porter's desk at one o'clock today.

As mentioned in an issue of the "Daily" last week, no one wearing a "soup and fish" or a tux will be allowed to attend the dance. The porters have been given strict orders to bounce the offenders, and the more fussed up a man is, the harder and farther will he be bounced! As the old saying is "a word to the wise is as good as a wink to a blind horse"; we need say no more. Don't say that you haven't been warned!

Preparations have been made to handle a larger crowd than usual as it is expected that this will be the most successful of the informals given so far this year.

The McGill Dance Orchestra will be on hand to supply the music. The order of dances will be as follows:—

- Extra—Fox Trot.
- 1—Waltz.
- 2—Fox Trot.
- 3—Fox Trot.
- 4—Waltz.
- 5—Fox Trot.
- 6—Fox Trot.
- 7—Waltz.

First Sitting.
Extra: 1—Fox Trot.
2—Fox Trot.

- Second Sitting.
- 8—Fox Trot.
- 9—Fox Trot.
- 10—Waltz, Moonlight.
- 11—Fox Trot.
- 12—Waltz.

As mentioned above, the tickets will be put on sale at the hall porter's desk in the Union at one o'clock today.

INSPIRING MESSAGE BY GREAT LEADER

Dr. Gray Spoke to Large Student Gathering

IN UNION

Delivered Masterful Address On: "What is the Good of Religion?"

Choosing as the subject of his address the vital question, "What is the Good of Religion?", Dr. Herbert Gray delivered a masterful and inspiring message to the large student audience gathered in the Union yesterday morning. He used no text, although quoting the Bible several times and his words are better termed an address than a sermon. Dr. Gray, in showing the imperative need of religion, divided his address into three parts:— world conditions, moral impotence, and lastly, eternal dissatisfaction with earthly things.

A number of the men and women present had the privilege of hearing Dr. Gray at the Toronto Students' Conference and were delighted to again listen to the great Scottish leader. Those who had not heard him before, left the Union taking with them a great message.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Principal James Smyth of the Wesleyan College, who lead in prayer after the singing of "Hail Alma Mater" at the commencement of the service. The Presbyterian College orchestra, augmented with several other musicians, played the hymns in an effective manner, and the audience sang very heartily. After the hymn, "O Worship the King, all glorious above," Sir Arthur Currie read the Scripture lesson, St. Matthew 10, verses 26 to the end of the chapter, which was followed by "O Love that will not let me go." The offertory and announcements were preceded by prayer by Dr. Gray. Prior to the taking up of the collection, Mr. J. G. McKay spoke a few words, introducing Dr. Gray to those who had not already made his acquaintance. He mentioned the other times Dr. Gray would speak during his visit to McGill, and expressed the views of everyone present when he declared how fortunate McGill was to hear such an outstanding leader in the student world. The orchestra rendered a selection during the offertory, which was followed by "Faith of our fathers."

Commencing his address, Dr. Gray said that he had come to ask the great question, "What is the Good of Religion?" which was very vital, fundamental and inevitable to students, to graduates, and to all mankind. He said that he quite understood the viewpoint of the people who thought that religion was vague and abstract, and that housing, food, clothing, and in Canada, heat, and perhaps also knowledge were the only requisites. "But the things which really matter are not the obvious things. Such essentials as honour, truth, patriotism and love are not to be found on the surface," he declared. Dr. Gray said that mere dogmatism, and emotion would not bring about a new spirit which would induce men and women to refashion their lives on a truly Christian basis.

The speaker said that he would attempt to answer the question, "What is

On Monday night all the members of Arts 25 will say good-bye to their troubles and worries and take part in the sleigh drive which is always one of the important events of the second year.

The "drive" this year which has been in the hands of a committee of five and shows every sign of being as fine or perhaps better than those of preceding years.

Two large sleighs, drawn by six horses have been obtained and will accommodate about twenty couples each. Everybody will gather at the R.V.C. at eight o'clock sharp, and start on the drive about eight thirty following in introductions. The party will return to R.V.C. between ten thirty and eleven and indulge in refreshments.

Two or three musicians will be in attendance, and if there is time, a short dance will follow.

It is sincerely hoped that everyone will do their very best to be present, as the success of the drive depends solely upon the members turning out. This drive is strictly confined to members of the class, all others will be excluded.

GRADUATES AND RE-UNIONS.

No university with any concern for its future can fail to realize the importance of maintaining in the ranks of its graduate body a deep sense of loyalty to the Alma Mater.

Every move, making for the progress of a privately-endowed institution, if not always directly stimulated by the alumni, is at least dependent in great measure for success on their support. Building programmes, plans for adding capable men to their staff—these and other projects cannot be entertained unless behind them stands the graduate: enthusiastic, energetic and keenly concerned with the destinies of his college.

What steps are being taken by McGill to ensure such co-operation? The Graduate Societies which have sprung up during the last few years in all the larger cities of Canada and the United States where a sufficient number of graduates reside, are achieving valuable results in this regard. Their function is of importance not to be underestimated; and their continual multiplication throughout the length and breadth of the continent is indeed encouraging. But his is not enough to effect the desired result. A great deal yet remains to be done. Other colleges have Graduate Societies, too. But their efforts in keeping strong the ties between the alumni and the Alma Mater go farther. There is such an institution, for instance, as "Home-coming Week"—a week in every year during which the graduates flock back to the Campus from the various parts of the country. "Get-together" reunion functions of all descriptions take place during the week, topped off usually by an important football game between traditional rivals. The whole in general follows closely, but on a smaller scale, of course, the plan of the Centennial Reunion held here in 1921—but this every year. No surer method could possibly be devised of keeping alive the steadfast devotion towards the university, engendered in undergraduate days. This was clearly demonstrated in the show of spirit manifested during the Reunion.

As an innovation, an annual graduate's reunion, let us say, at the time of the McGill—Varsity football game, has certainly much to recommend it. The great success with which this idea has met at other universities is undeniably a convincing argument in favour of its consideration here. Whether the initiative should be assumed by the graduates or by the student body is not a matter of vast importance; it would seem, in fact, that close co-operation in this connection would be most efficacious. Let the idea once be taken up and the institution of it will follow surely without any great difficulty being encountered.

The Centennial celebration gave ample proof of the loyalty of the sons of McGill; efforts to maintain this splendid devotion should be commensurate with its very obvious value.

EDITORIAL NOTE

The large attendance at the Student Service held yesterday morning in the Union, and the interest so widely exhibited in the subject of Dr. Gray's address, may be regarded as a somewhat comforting answer, as far as this university is concerned, to those who may think of the college man of to-day as a profligate youth, interested in nothing outside his studies except sport and amusement. The measure of undergraduate approval that has been vouchsafed, not only to yesterday's student service, but to all that have been held this year, is indicative of a growing concern among undergraduates in affairs of the mind and the spirit. The subject of Dr. Gray's address dealt with the fundamental problem at the base of all religions—the question as to the final utility of faith—and the response which this topic has evoked among the students as shown by the large attendance at the service is certainly something that cannot be less than a source of the deepest gratification.

R.V.C. HONoured BY SIR FREDERIC KENYON

On Saturday morning the Royal Victoria College was honoured with a visit from a most distinguished scholar, in the person of Sir Frederic Kenyon, who was accompanied by Professor Dienesmorr of the department of Architecture of Columbia University.

Unfortunately Sir Frederic had only a few hours to spend in the city and was unable through lack of time to be shown McGill. But although he spent very little time at the college the Daily reporter had a chance to interview him for a few minutes.

Sir Frederic came out for the purpose of speaking to the Classical League at Chicago, and was then on his way there. He said he had already spoken at Yale and Harvard but had spent only a few hours at each university.

As chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, Sir Frederic Kenyon is widely known. He has also attained great prominence in the worlds of classical research and literature. Having produced a number of important works dealing with the subject of classical study and in being the director of the British Museum. He is also a great Browning scholar and has edited E. B. Browning's letters and poems as well as several editions of Robert Browning's works.

It is most regrettable that Sir Frederic stay in the city was of such short duration, and that the students of McGill were unable to have the good fortune of hearing him speak.

SAMSON AGONISTES.

A war on "cake-eaters" and lounge-lizards" has been started by twenty-five men students of the University of California.

They have formed the "Samson club" for protection against the Delilahs of the campus. It is their belief that by banding together and letting their hair and beards grow that the wiles of the co-eds will be thwarted.

The Exalted Mogul of the order believe that Samson's power lay in the fact that he abstained from the use of a razor. As soon as his locks were shorn Delilah "got him." He believes that too much attention is paid to college women.

One rule of the club prohibits any member taking out a co-ed without at least five associates as chaperons. The utmost secrecy is being maintained as to the membership of the club in order that the campus sirens may not be tempted to charm weak-willed students from the ranks.

EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY.

Last week, in an interview with the Yale Daily News, Dr. Coue said that any self-confidence gained by mental suggestions would lead to success in exams as well as in any other phase of life. He declared that this was the most important message that he could give to college students.

The 140 pictures which have been submitted by the fairest of the fair on the campus will be sent to Miss Donnelly at once. They will probably be judged within the next two or three weeks.

Miss Donnelly recently picked the 12 most beautiful women in America, and is writing the reasons for her selections in the coloroto section of the Sunday Tribune.

CAPTAIN CUTTLE'S COLUMN

SOMETHING FISHY.

Dear Cap.—I am deeply in love at first sight with a little French maiden, and want your advice. The thing happened this way. I was up skiing when I heard someone calling "track, track." Then I was knocked down, and turning around saw a most beautiful creature with eyes like Ben Turpin, who seemed to recognize me for a friend, as she said, "Poisson, pauvre poisson." She then continued her progression down the slope, leaving me with my heart beating sadly, as I don't understand a word of French. How do you think my chances stand?

Lovesick,

ARCHIBALD.

Ans.—You seem to have fallen in love, and according to the meaning of the maiden's shy expression of her sentiments, I think that you ought to get along swimmingly.

Dear Captain—I was passing the Campus Rink in the hollow on Saturday morning, and, to my surprise, I noticed a crowd of co-eds playing at some sort of game which I had never seen before. The object of the contest seemed to be to ascertain which of the opposing team could find the ice the greatest number of times and in the most graceful manner. Could you inform me what game they could have been playing? Was it curling?

Ans.—No. They were sliding; curling is very properly restricted to the dressing rooms.

ONTARIO CLUB WILL HOLD SKATING PARTY

Arrangements are progressing favorably for the Skiing and Skating Party which will be held under the auspices of the Ontario Club on Monday next.

The tickets will be put on sale to-morrow evening and may be obtained from any of the following men, S. C. Cobell, Commerce; G. H. Rumpel and E. M. Woolcombe, Science; J. Puddicombe, Medicine; O. B. Strapp; A. V. Sharpe, Arts; or at the hall porter's desk in the Union. The price is most reasonable, fifty cents per couple. Following the skating and skiing, the party will assemble at the Union for refreshments and there will be a short dance in the allroom following.

This event is open to any one in the college, not to members of the Ontario Club only. Tickets should be obtained early as there will be only a limited number on sale.

STUDENTS MUST PAY TO TAKE QUIZZES.

A new system was inaugurated at Boston University this year in connection with the mid-year examinations. The students were required to purchase tickets in the bookstore, with which they might obtain official examination books to be issued when they entered the examination room.

The books are a distinct advantage over the loose leaf system which has always been in operation at C. B. A., for they eliminate the dangers of papers being lost or misplaced, and are a great help to the professor in correcting.

Note books with blue covers will be "You have only to say, 'Wilt thou?' that was the color of these little pamphlets, which proved so adequate in informing the student how little he had absorbed in a course.

McGILL TIE LACHINE IN SPEEDY GAME

Fast Hockey in Intermediate League

SCORE ONE ALL

Brewer Hurt—McGill Scored in Last Minutes of Game

In a game of hockey that was hotly contested till the final whistle, but which was marred at times by rough play, McGill Intermediate, on Saturday, held Lachine to a tie score of 1 to 1 at Victoria Rink.

The game was fast but McGill showed weakness in passing and some golden opportunities of scoring were lost when the puck was not passed at the crucial moment.

Scoring opened in the first period after 4 minutes of play when W. Mill netted the first goal for Lachine. During the rest of the period McGill tried hard to score but the sterling defense of W. Mill and Norton was too much for them and the period ended 1 to 0 in favour of Lachine.

At the opening of the second period, both teams went at it with a will and the pace began to quicken. It was at this stage that signs of bad feeling were shown by the respective teams and several hard body checks were handed out. The situation was brought to a head when, in a mix up in front of the McGill net, one of the Lachine players struck Brewer the McGill goalie, on the side of the head with his stick, cutting it badly. Immediately one or two small fights developed and it threatened to become a free for all but the referee restored order and the game was delayed for four or five minutes. When the teams finally appeared they were each short a man, both being penalized by the referee. In Brewer's absence, Beardsley played a remarkably good game in goal and stopped a great many difficult shots. Brewer came on again and played his usual steady game and the play became fast but not much combination was shown. With about four minutes to go Thompson scored the tying goal from a mix up in front of the Lachine net and the whistle sounded with both teams fighting hard.

Only two periods were played on account of lack of accommodation at the Arena.

Contingent Orders by

LT.-COL. R. R. THOMPSON, M.C., Officer Commanding.

Examinations for Lieutenants and Captains.

1—All candidates should call at the orderly room for a pamphlet on outposts.

2—Candidates for the A certificate must be thoroughly acquainted with platoon and section drill. In addition to the orders for forming up, inspecting, etc., of a platoon, as per Section 92 of the new book on Infantry Training, they should know the following orders thoroughly by heart:

(c)—At the half on the left, form line of sections in fours (or file) at — paces interval. These are dealt with in Sections 93 and 94. Section Commanders must not forget the orders they give. No. 2 Section, right, incline, and when in the alignment: No. 2 Section—Halt, and so on. The platoon can be brought back into line or column of fours (according to whether they are in file or fours) by giving the order: Sections, right—wheel, or, on the left, form—sections. The words "At the Halt," or "Quick March," need to be added, according to whether it is desired to halt the platoon, or to carry out the movement from the halt. Candidates must also know when a platoon commander gives an order in company drill.

The orders for Extended Order Movements are simple, but nevertheless candidates should make sure that they will remember them at the time of the examination, and give them with proper emphasis on the last word, the word on which everyone moves. It is essential that candidates should give their orders with decision and confidence, and in a voice loud enough for marching men to hear it above the tramp of their feet.

A good general knowledge of Vol. II. of Infantry Training is also necessary.

JUNIORS AND ST. GABRIELS FIGHT TO TIE

Fast and Clean Hockey Displayed at Arena

ONE ALL

McGill Shooting Wild — St. Gabriel Had Good Defence

Skating through a bewildering defence, and completely fooling Deagon, St. Gabriel's goalie, Code scored the goal that brought Saturday's Junior hockey match to a one all score.

In the three minutes that remained after Code's score, both teams worked very hard for a victory, but good back checking stopped the rushes of both teams, and when the final gong sounded, the score was unchanged.

The game was fast and interesting, and was one of the cleanest yet seen at the Arena, there being only one penalty. Merrigan was sent to the bench for some rather doubtful tactics just five seconds before the final bell.

Johnston, who took Munro's place in the McGill nets, was good. In all, he stopped thirty-four shots, the quarter part of which came at a difficult angle and with considerable speed. Deagon guarded St. Gabriel's goal well, though he was by no means as hard worked as Johnston. McGill's shots were mostly wild, only fifteen of them calling for the goalkeeper's service during the game.

Merrigan and Bennet were very serviceable to their team in breaking up the McGill rushes, while Code and Galley put up a good exhibition for McGill.

For the first few minutes of the game the puck see-sawed back and forth on the ice. Six minutes after the whistle the Irishmen outskated the Red and White and sent a neat shot to the McGill nets, the puck just glanced off Johnston's shoulders and struck the post. Johnston cleared well and the referee called no goal.

For the next few minutes the puck was near the McGill goal. Johnston caught a hot one with his hand. Goldie sent the puck up the ice, but the St. Gabriel forwards soon brought it back. There was a mix-up at the Red and White goal, but Johnston saved by lying on the puck.

The puck was soon at the McGill end of the ice again. Shaughnessy's defence men were unable to fall back quickly enough, and Johnston had to skate out about four feet to save. Healy got the puck on the rebound, but his shot was easily handled by the McGill goalkeeper.

For the rest of the period the puck travelled upon and down the ice. McGill made several rushes but these were all broken up by Merrigan and Bennet, who played a steady defence game throughout.

The second period opened at a fast clip. Johnston had to leave his net three times in the first two minutes, to get himself out of some rather awkward positions.

St. Gabriel then sent four men down the ice in an attempt to score. There was a mix-up at the goal, and five men fell on each other, in the excitement Healy secured the puck and sent a swift one through the nets. Johnston was completely fooled, thinking he puck was beneath the scramble, but when he saw what happened, made an attempt to have; he fell forward, however, and lost all grip on his stick.

At this juncture the McGill defence seemed to give way considerably, and Johnston was heavily bombarded. Bringing into play his hands and body, the McGill goalie was able to keep the score down.

After this, McGill did more shooting, though the puck went wild for the most part.

Alarmed by McGill's renewed activities the St. Gabriel captain ordered first a three, then a four man defence. Code and Galley managed to get the puck well into the Irishmen's territory. Deagon cleared slowly when Code shot, and the McGill man was able to take his own rebound. The St. Gabriel defence was completely bewildered, and Code skated clean through them, sending the rubber past Deagon for the final goal of the game. During the remaining three and a half minutes both teams worked hard, but the individual play relied on was easily broken up by either defence, and when the gong sounded the score was still one all.

R.V.C. HOCKEY TEAM DEFEAT TEACHERS

Another League Game Last Saturday

Another game of the Women's Hockey League was played off Saturday when R.V.C. defeated the Teachers by a score of 1 to 0. The combination of both teams was poor but R.V.C. was playing under a disadvantage, for three strong members of the team were not playing. On both sides a good fighting spirit was shown and there was some pretty stick-handling. Miss Kerr was called upon to make a great number of stops and kept a cool head in the midst of the many scrambles about the R.V.C. goal. Miss Grant played splendidly and made several strong rushes, one of which resulted in the single goal of the game. Miss Stocking also played a very good game. Miss Mills, Miss Rough and Miss Campbell were the outstanding players on the Teachers team. R.V.C. was forced to play on the defensive during most of the game.

First Period.

The first period opened with a rush towards the R.V.C. goal; then Miss Grant carried the puck to the Teachers' end. But the puck was soon brought back to the R.V.C. goal and several wild shots were made. After the puck had been carried back and forth several times, Miss Grant succeeded in netting her goal. Most the playing centred round the R.V.C. goal but the puck was occasionally carried back and forth. Miss Grant and Miss Bingham made two-man rush and the Teachers' goalie was called upon to give several clear shots. A scramble at the R.V.C. goal was followed by several off-sides. Just before the whistle blew, the R.V.C. goalie stopped a good shot. The score was 1 to 0 for R.V.C.

Second Period.

Soon after the second period opened Miss Kerr's skill was again tested. The puck was carried away from the R.V.C. goal but soon brought back again. A scramble ensued and only the good work of the goalie kept the Teachers from scoring several goals. The play centred for awhile. The Teachers got away with the puck and clean but unsuccessful shots were made by Miss Campbell and Miss Rough and by Miss Stocking, as the puck moved from one end to the other. The second period ended with the score unchanged.

Third Period.

In the third period Miss Kerr's guarding power was tested by Miss Mills and by Miss Campbell who made some good rushes. Miss Watson got in a good long shot. For a time no one could get away with the puck; then there were several exciting scrambles in front of the R.V.C. goal. The play began to be more evenly divided when the final whistle blew, with the score 1 to 0 in favor of R.V.C.

The line-up was as follows:

R.V.C.	Teachers.

THE GUESSING CONTEST

Has the ability to stay in college and pass the required number of hours work degenerated into the "art" of out-guessing the instructor? Judging from the way some of the students prepare for their lessons and their exams it would seem that they are pretty keen students of psychology and human nature. They try to analyze the instructor's method of teaching and to gather from this just about what kind of questions he will ask in tests, and as for daily recitation work some students have a regular schedule made out of the dates when they will be called on next. And such is the regularity and unchangeableness of some of the professors that the schedule will not miss it much.

The student that learns only that which he thinks is absolutely required is hurting nobody but himself, as it is he that is paying to come here to school so if he fails to get all that is coming to him then he is the loser. Students are not superhuman and they are not at all addicted to the habit of study so that they will ferret out all the facts of the course if it is not required. There are too many other things to distract a student's attention for him to pore over his books when he thinks it isn't necessary.

So the fact that he is the only loser does not justify the condition nor does it prove that it is all his fault. An instructor that allows himself to be outwitted by his students by conduction his daily classes in the same regular order, by using the same assignments and questions for the course year after year is not only permitting it but is encouraging it. In courses where memory work only is desired, it would make little difference but to see students dragging out the questions that were used for several years back on the same examination is almost disgusting. The course should be studied for what good can be obtained from it and not simply to get a good grade. Freak and catch questions are sometimes resorted to in order to get away from this situation, but this only aggravates it as that only adds zest to the guessing, making it a keener contest, and with the loser always disgruntled. Variation in the courses can be obtained by the instructor without this form of questioning, so the student will be interested in his course and will not be able to tell beforehand what the questions will be with any degree of certainty. — Perdue Exponent.

WE'LL SAY THE WILT.

Word was received yesterday that the Queen's basketballers on Saturday defeated the Toronto squad by 30 to 24 points.

BILLIARD TOURNAMENT REACHES SEMI-FINAL

Saturday afternoon a large crowd saw the match between J. R. Robertson and E. H. Bouillon, at the Union, which was won by the latter by the score of 151—146. Bouillon had a handicap of 20 points.

Bouillon played a consistent game trusting to his in-off shot, but falling far short in his caroms and potting.

Robertson played inconsistently, but made runs of 19, 21, 25, which kept the game exciting to the last.

Bouillon needing a final one point, showed great sportsmanship by not sinking his opponent's ball, thus giving Robertson four points of a needed 10.

A Guide to What's Good to Get

SOME one has said that if bread and butter were new inventions they would have to be advertised before people would accept them as standard articles of food.

Even in this progressive age, folks are somewhat wary of leaving the beaten path. They stick pretty close to the things they know, when those things come up to their expectations.

That is why alert merchants and manufacturers strive to tell about their products and their services in the advertising columns of the daily paper. They want you to know what they have to offer, in the belief that when you do know, you will be interested, and perhaps inspired, with some of their own enthusiasm.

Thrifty men and women find that it pays to read the advertisements. It enables them to rest assured that they are not overlooking anything. It lets them know where to locate some desired product or service; where to go for "this" or how to get "that" to best advantage. Without its direction they would overlook much and consequently lose much. They would live in ignorance of many things that might add materially to their wealth, health and happiness.

Make advertising your guide to what's good to get.

Read it—reflect on it—it pays!

DR. HERBERT GRAY SPOKE SUNDAY NIGHT

"Fundamentals of Christianity" was His Subject

200 STUDENTS

Fundamentals are: "God is Love and Jesus Teaching is Workable"

"God never commanded a man to kill another." So said Dr. Herbert Gray at an address before the Sing group at the S. C. A. Sunday night.

Dr. Gray started his address by saying that when he first went to college all his ideas were in a state of confusion and change. He said that at first he was "lost at sea." What are the fundamentals? was a question he asked himself many times before he could arrive at a satisfactory answer.

"I have no pity for those going through the state of change in belief, because I have gone through it myself, and I know that a person can and must solve his own difficulties. Everyone must work out their own beliefs, and arrive at their own conclusions. Think, live, and pray, and although your problems may never be completely solved—no man's ever are—you will always have the satisfaction of really believing what you admit to believe. No man can have a 'second hand religion.' Religion is too great and wonderful a thing to be got easily. As there is no 'Royal Road to Learning,' there is no 'Royal Road to Religion.' To be true to yourself, true to your ancestors, and true to your God, you must suffer, strive and wait for your true religion. Many men have no religion and most men have not their own. You, as students have the privilege of greater access to knowledge and free-thinking, and it is up to you to accept this great challenge to not be a moral coward and accept things as they are, but to make things for yourself.

What are the fundamentals that we may take for granted? I will give you my answer. To answer this for yourself one does not have to be a scholar, a mathematician, or a physicist, but one has to be honest with oneself. Will Christianity stand? and what is a Christian? are questions often fired at us. What are our answers? To my mind a Christian is a disciple of Jesus Christ, that is he is a pupil of one of the greatest moral teachers who ever lived. One must also be loyal to Jesus and Jesus' teachings to be a Christian. A Christian is a learner and a follower of Jesus. Another question is, "Are the records of Jesus accurate?" In spite of a great controversy that has waged over this question, both extremists and orthodox have agreed, on this question, to a compromise. All competent scholars agree to the authenticity of the first three gospels as historical records of Jesus' life and character—the most up-to-date modern summary of criticism is to be obtained in Pique's First Volume of "The Commentary of the Bible." To put in a few words the best rule for reading the Bible is: Trust what needs to be trusted. The questions relating to the Birth and Death of Jesus are important, but not vitally essential. Only his teaching is fundamental. Jesus teaching is my religion.

How do I know if Jesus' teaching is trustworthy? Because the Bible says so is no answer to this question, for on what foundation can we assert that the Bible is reliable? Because the church says so is not an answer either. What church are we to trust? This raises a big question. What absolute authority can we obtain? To obtain an absolute authority even if it is the church or the Bible or some person requires as much original thinking as to arrive at the conclusion yourself. Cardinal Newman did more thinking before he took the step he took in acknowledging Rome as an authority than many men do in arriving at their own conclusion in such matters as were in debate in his mind. Are we to accept the miracles of Jesus as authority? No. But if Jesus was not a good man he cannot be taken as trustworthy, but herein we believe that he was a good man. It is my personal conviction that he was a good man, and this is the answer. You have to accept your own personal judgment in no matter what way you ground your faith.

If Jesus was right his teaching should work, and it does work. Thousands who have tried it have found it did work. There are all sorts and kinds of religion, but that God is love and Jesus' philosophy is workable are the only two fundamentals that I will accept as such. This is proving truer every year more and more in my life. The Old Testament is a great book when you know how to read it, and the New Testament is valuable in that it portrays the life and teaching of Jesus.

The story of the prodigal son, the parables, Jesus' attitude towards his contemporaries, towards woman, who was not thought much of in his day, and towards the little children, are all portrayals of God. Believing in Jesus as a personality and in his teaching one cannot have a false conception of God such as is pictured in parts of the Old Testament. God never ordered a

McGill University,

February 10, 1923.

Editor,

McGill Daily:—

Dear Sir:—Suppose a beautiful fairy were to ask the students of the School of Commerce to express a wish and that it would be granted; I have no doubt the unanimous reply would be: "Let Commerce become a Faculty."

Let us examine into the reasons which would induce them to prefer this wish above all others.

Commerce from a mere insignificant department has grown to an important school, and in this growth she has outstripped older and more firmly established faculties. But in spite of this apparent expansion, it has not been as rapid or important as should be expected, considering both the size and importance of similar schools in the U. S. Why is this so?

There are, I believe, two reasons for this. First the lack of publicity; second perhaps the most important, and which may have a direct bearing on the first, is the general make up of the school. I refer to its dependent position as part of the Faculty of Arts, and its consequent rather weak curriculum. If Commerce is to be more progressive these defects must be eliminated. There seems but one way to do so: Commerce must become a faculty.

It is difficult for us, in Commerce, to understand why the school cannot get this status. We have in this University faculties having smaller registrations, and one which is even composed mostly of partials. We have even other schools and Departments which enjoy greater independence than Commerce. There are supposed to be some financial difficulties in the way. True. But is it not at all possible that some arrangements could be made? I have said 'faculty,' but faculty or school, the name signifies little. What is wanted is greater independence. That is all.

Now there is that curriculum. We are supposed to get from it a commercial, and a fair academic education. The trouble is that we get too much of the academic and not enough of the Commercial. This, I suppose is due to the influence of our faculty, namely, Arts. What we need is that more commercial subjects be introduced into the curriculum.

I do not suggest that we adopt the same plans as followed by most schools of Commerce in the U. S. where the courses are too highly little or no emphasis is put on the academic side. It is a wrong policy. But if both branches of the course are to be carried on effectively it is absolutely essential that one more year be added. This seems necessary so that the subjects may be studied more fully, that more subjects may be taken up, and in general that we may get a greater satisfaction out of the course.

At the beginning of the session certain changes were made in Arts. Commerce, being a part of Arts, came in for the same changes. Arts has the three hour period for a subject; therefore Commerce must have the same. Arts has fifteen hours a week; therefore Commerce must have the same. But is there not a slight possibility that there conditions are not as suitable for Commerce as for Arts? Is it not at all possible that two and four hour periods per week, that eighteen or twenty hours might be better?

I know that there are some in Commerce who are not too pleased with the course. I understand that Commerce is sometimes characterised, both in College, and, what is worse, outside of college, as a "cinch" of a course. How true this is I hesitate to say. But there is only one way to dissipate the rumour, and that is by rectifying the cause. And there seems to be only one way to do a man to kill another man, or men to plunder the Egyptians. Such ideas are unreasonable in the light of Jesus' teaching.

Do you need a historical foundation to be a good man? My answer is that an historical foundation makes a tremendous difference. To know that someone did live the life Jesus led is a great help to us. An historic fact is not a dream, and does not depend on your whims or psychological attitudes.

An old man who was dying said to his daughter: "I have far less creed than I had, but I have more of a faith." The facts are the things that Jesus taught. May the good God help you to be honest and fearless to work out your answer that you may be honest to live them out."

Miss D. Cross and Mr. C. W. Summer provided music for the evening, and the singing was very excellent.

Dr. Gray is ready to answer any questions put to him by any students, and requests that they be sent in to him at the S. C. A., preferably in writing. He will endeavour to answer them on his last night here.

this: Commerce must be a faculty. I thank you, Sir, for your most valuable space.

Yours truly,

M. BAUMAN,

The Editor,

McGill Daily:—

Dear Sir:—Who is the budding politician who is so deeply interested in success of the "Mock Parliament"; and why does he consider that the Third Session of the same is of more importance than the Annual Inspection of the C.O.T.C.?

I would like to offer him a suggestion, and as he saw fit to withhold his name, I can only do so through the medium of this column. My suggestion is this, that in future he should direct any complaints to the proper authorities, and through the official channels, instead of imposing his grievances upon the Student Body as a whole; for instance, he might have tendered his complaint to the Officer Commanding through the medium of the Orderly Room.

I think, however, that he might be congratulated on the frankness and candour with which he selected the very appropriate nom de plume of "A Poor Private".

I consider, sir, that the infamous suggestion "that the Committee on Schedules refuse the C.O.T.C. the use of the Daily for publication of Contingent Orders in future as a result of this flagrant disregard of the rule laid down by that committee" is a gross piece of impertinence.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing this letter.

Yours sincerely,

T. M. du B. GODET.

STIRRING ADDRESS BY GREAT LEADER

the Good of Religion" by dividing his address into three parts. He first gave a very vivid account of the terrible world conditions prevailing today. "This is one of the saddest, one of the most tragic, and one of the most ominous periods in history, and it may be likened to the decline of the Roman Empire. Last year more people died in Europe from unnatural causes than in any year of the war. The statesmen and financiers of Europe are helpless, not knowing which way to turn. Thousands of the academic class are quite destitute, devoid of any means of carrying on their college careers. It looks as if the European states will tear each other to pieces like a lot of wolves. What is the cause of this awful calamity to mankind? It is because we deliberately excluded God from our lives. In commerce, Political Economy was deemed sufficient to settle all difficulties. Political Science was thought to govern all political matters.

All reference to God was excluded, except in private life, and on Sunday. In a time of immense wealth, we were surrounded by poverty and horrible slums." At this point, Dr. Gray made mention of Kipling's great hymn, "Lest We Forget", declaring that Europe did forget, and the building of navies, increase of armies, and exploitation by capitalism had very nearly destroyed everything called civilisation.

"There has been no common bond of authority among the European peoples," he declared, "who have continued to quarrel, fight and strive to increase their power at the expense of others. There can never be any way out of it until mankind has some common moral standard, a common bond of faith. The continuance of present conditions means ultimate decay. Do you still ask what is the good of religion? It is the fundamental condition by which alone this stricken world can be saved. It is either life with religion, or no life. The common acknowledgment of God must train and fashion our lives."

Proceeding to his second point, Dr. Gray said that he took it for granted that students came to college to pursue truth. He showed that man himself was not adequate, in which connection he quoted the words of St. Paul, that man does the evil that he would not do, but does not accomplish the good that he would do. He said that moral disabilities such as bad temper, selfishness, envy, jealousy, and inherent laziness, must be faced. "The power of God can and does enter into the lives of men and women, and there is deliverance from these things if implicit faith is rested in Jesus Christ." Dr. Gray asserted that all people like himself needed the help of God to develop and ensure moral tenacity and steadfastness of purpose. The proof was to be found in the lives of a vast and wonderful array of persons prominent in history, who found God and were thus saved from defeat.

The last aspect from which Dr. Gray spoke concerned neither world conditions, nor moral impotence, but that something which, however successful human lives may be, is yet lacking. In this connection he mentioned three persons, all totally different, who though successful were yet unsatisfied. The first was an eminent literary critic who told Dr. Gray at the front that he was "fed up" with worldly affairs in spite of the fact that he had attained the height of his profession; the second, the magnificent King Solomon, who with his grandeur, palaces, and countless slaves, had termed it all "vanity"; and the third, "Babbitt," the standardised type of American, and with little variation, the average person of to-day. He asked what was wrong with these people.

They had all achieved what they had set out to do, and were yet unsatisfied.

"It was because they had not found God.

We are all made with that mysterious capacity for God, and until satisfied, nothing else will satisfy." Dr. Gray said that these three people were all in middle life, but that the same question faced everybody, young and old. "The soul is continually crying out, and it awakens here and there. But now is the time to set your life; to get the essential thing. And how to get it? Through the most God-saturated Man who ever lived, Jesus Christ."

Kipling's "God of our fathers, known of old", followed by the benediction pronounced by Principal Smyth concluded the service.

The large number of students present was gratifying and it is hoped that Dr. Gray's other addresses will be equally well-attended. Amongst others present were Miss Hurlbutt, Dr. John W. Ross, a Governor of McGill; Dean Frank D. Adams; Dr. Ira Mackay, and Rev. Principal Ritchie of the Congregational College.

THE ETERNAL DEBT.

Not long ago when a group of professors and school teachers banded together to form a union and strike for higher wages, their standing in the community was increased, but not their salary. Teachers, like ministers, are still forced to live well on the same annual pay as grocery men and expert automobile mechanics, and it is only when such men as Rockefeller take pity on them and give bequests that they "get a raise." Perhaps it is for this reason that of the 178 positions as teachers in private schools offered to Harvard graduates during the year 1921-1922, less than 35 were filled.

A circular letter sent out by the University Appointment Office to all members of the senior, class urges, "men who have any athletic ability or interests, and scholarship enough to warrant them in undertaking to teach others, to consult the Office." There is a constant demand for college graduates as teachers in private and public schools—a demand which, under the present conditions, it is impossible to fill. More and more boys are going to school and college, but fewer and fewer men are appearing to teach them.

And yet, in spite of low salary and non-union hours, "the intelligencia as it is" seems contented with its lot. Philosophers have always proclaimed the joys of "thought for thought's sake," and have extended a general invitation to all who cared to listen. The fact that few have heeded has bothered them not at all, up to the present. But now a critic, exclaiming that the teaching profession is in danger of falling into the hands of women, a possibility derided by all educational experts, sets before men the arguments to induce them to enter it; the interest offered by contact with younger men, the satisfaction of service rendered, the security from outside worry, the long vacations and the pleasures of the work itself.

Yet these are not the most vital reasons. Far more cogent is the gradual realization that all professors and school masters are not absent minded nonentities, and that the real need is not merely for men but men who have done things. The professions most frequently ridiculed are the very ones which need the best material, and school teaching is no exception. Those who teach because they can do nothing else, fall notoriously in that, as every school boy knows. Only too often, however, necessity leaves to them the payment of "the eternal debt of age to youth—education."—Harvard Crimson
